PARADE AT THE CENOTAPH.

OBSERVANCE OF THE KING'S BIRTHDAY.

IMPRESSIVE DISPLAY IN THE CITY.

COLOURFUL SCENE.

Brilliant weather favoured the King's Birthday Parade in Hongkong this morning in which about 2,500 members of the services took part. The Parade was very similar to that of last year and formed an impressive spectacle which was watched by huge crowds of people near the Cenotaph. For the second year in succession there was no demonstration by aircraft, but in addition to the 1st Mountain Battery, Hongkong-Singapore Brigade R.A. units were headed by mounted officers.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel K.B.E. arrived at the Cenotaph at 10 o'clock. He was received with a Royal Salute played by the massed bands. There were three Guards of Honour, each consisting of two officers and 50 men. They were drawn up on the south side of Chater Road, facing north in the following order:—1st. Battalion the Somerset Light Infantry, 2nd. Battalion the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders and the 3rd. Battalion, 15th Punjab Regiment.

The other men forming the 2nd. Battalion Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders were formed up on the north side of Connaught Road facing south the pipe band being on the right flank of the Battalion.

Officers Present.

The massed bands of the Somerset Light Infantry, the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, the Punjab Regiment and the Hongkong Volunteer Defence Corps were formed up in Jackson Road under Bandmaster E. J. Woolcott, 1st Battalion, Somerset Light Infantry.

The space on the Eastern side of the Cenotaph was reserved for the Consular Body, and the Executive and Legislative Councils, the western side for the E.A.S.M.A., British Legion, Mercantile Marine, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, St. John Ambulance Brigade and the R.E. Old Comrades' Association (Hongkong Branch).

His Excellency the Governor was met on arrival by the General Officer Commanding, H.E. Major General J. W. Sandilands C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., Rear Admiral R.A.S. Hill and Squadron Leader S. T. Freeman, M.B.E., R.A.F.

The G.O.C. was accompanied by Lieut. Col. Hannah, M.C., Col. W. D. S. Brownrigg D.S.O. and Capt. D. H. M. Cameron A.D.C.

The Rear Admiral was accompanied by Lt. Comdr. T. A. Powell (H.M.S. Tamar), and Paymr. Lieut. Cdr. D. H. Pasmore. The Senior Officer R.A.F. was accompanied by one Air Force Officer.

The troops on parade were brought to the "Present" when the Royal Salute was played and His Excellency the Governor then inspected the three Guards of Honour. He then took up a position on the north side of the Cenotaph and the saluting batteries of the H.K.S.R.A. fired seven rounds from Murray Parade ground.

Feu-de-joie Fired.

No sooner had the last echo died away when the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders fired a feu-de-joie. There was an impressive silence as the last rifle crackled and then the massed bands played the first part of the National Anthem.

This procedure was repeated until a salute of 21 guns had been fired, the Highlanders firing three feu-de-joie, this part of the ceremony concluding with the playing of the whole of the National Anthem.

The troops then removed their head-dresses and in response to the commands of officers three cheers were given for His Majesty the King. The bands then moved into position for the march past which was led by a detachment of the Royal Navy. The march past was in the following order:—Royal Navy, 12th, 20th and 31st Batteries, Royal Artillery; Hongkong

FINE BATTING BY BRADMAN.

HAMPSHIRE TROUNCED BY THE AUSTRALIANS.

YORKSHIRE BOWLING.

London, June 2.

At Southampton to-day, the Australians defeated Hampshire by an innings and eight runs. The match was marked by another brilliant batting display by Bradman who on Saturday created a record by scoring 1,000 runs in May.

Hampshire made 151 runs in the first innings and when play was resumed this morning the Australians had 82 on the board for the loss of two wickets, Bradman was not out with 47 and when he went to the wicket again he proceeded to score rapidly from the Hampshire bowling.

Bradman just missed his double century, contributing 191 of Australia's first inning's total of 334. McCabe also got the measure of the bowling and scored 65.

Boyes of Hampshire took six wickets for 90 runs. The County

CURFEW ENFORCED.

Seoul, June 2.

Scores of Korean terrorists made a raid on Toutaoku, eighteen miles south west of Yenki and Chientao last night, but were repulsed by Chinese military.

Curfew has been enforced at Toutaoku, but details of the raid are not available owing to the interruption of communications.

team made 175 when they went to the wicket again, Grimmett taking seven for 56 and Hornibrook three for 51.

Yorkshire Win.

At Hull, Yorkshire beat Leicester by an innings and 163 runs, in a match which was characterised by brilliant bowling by Macaulay. Leicester were skittled out for 113 in the first innings, Macaulay taking four for 43 and Verity four for 45. Yorkshire put up some good batting and declared at 319 for seven, Mitchell making 136.

Going in again, the Leicester men were rapidly sent back to the pavilion, the whole team being dismissed for 45. Macaulay took six wickets for eleven runs and Verity four wickets for 15 runs.—Reuter.

NO EXAMINATION OF TREATY.

TORY OBJECTION TO NAVAL PACT.

MOTION FOR A COMMITTEE DEFEATED.

FAIR BARGAIN MADE.

London, June 2.

Mr. Baldwin, the Conservative leader, moved in the House of Commons that a Select Committee of eleven members be appointed to examine and report upon the proposals contained in the international Treaty for the limitation and reduction of naval armaments.

Mr. Baldwin said the last thing one wanted in this country was another naval scare which was easily worked up in certain circumstances. It was, purely with a view to obviating the smallest possible risks of anything of that kind arising that he asked for the examination of the Treaty. He wanted to know whether British security remained, whether Britain would be in a position in any circumstances to fulfil her sacred obligations and how the country would stand in the future in regard to European standards of naval construction.

It would have been a simple problem if America had become a member of the League of Nations because America and this country as members of the League could make war impossible. We had, however, to consider the question of America outside the League and determined to maintain neutrality so far as troubles in the old world might be concerned.

Premier Replies.

Mr. MacDonald, the Premier, warned Mr. Baldwin that if the Government were to assent to his proposal it would be a departure from the relations between the Executive and the House of Commons which had become part and parcel of our ordinary procedure.

Mr. Baldwin must remember that everytime the Army, Navy and Air Force estimates were presented to the House every consideration that he had referred to now was involved in those estimates.

The investigation made in the United States was part of the ordinary procedure there, but was not in England.

Judging by the Press, the opposition favoured not an agreement but unbridled competition.

The Admiralty was perfectly satisfied that a fair bargain had been made and that they could fulfil their duty to the country.

In the United States it was being said that they had not secured enough and in Japan and the British Commons the same was said. He asked whether there could be any more definite tribute to the fairness of the Treaty.

Motion Defeated.

Mr. Winston Churchill, winding up the debate, bitterly assailed the Treaty which, he said, involved not parity but inferiority for Britain who was never so defenceless nor so vulnerable since the reign of Charles the Second.

Mr. George Lambert spoke for the Liberals and supported the Government, thus assuring a Government majority.

Mr. Baldwin's motion was defeated by 282 votes to 201.

Colonel Gifford asked if there was any understanding or any undertaking between the Government and the representatives of any Power or Powers who were present at the Naval Conference which were not set down in the Treaty.

The Prime Minister replied that there were none.

Major R. Ross (Conservative) drew attention to a statement made in America regarding an Anglo-American agreement in connexion with the modernisation of the American battle fleet. No answer was given.—Reuter and British Wireless.

AIRCRAFT ACTION IN INDIA.

CONGRESS ACTIVITY.

London, June 2.

The appreciation of the situation in India during the past week, given in the House of Commons by Mr. Wedgwood Benn, stated that the tribal situation had not changed and that Air Force action had been continued against definitely located positions.

As regards the internal situation—Peshawar district—this had been less satisfactory. There had been an increase in Congress activity reported from Derajailkhan. The outstanding feature elsewhere had been the number of local disorders, the most serious being at Rangoon where, however, no ill-feeling was shown towards the Police or Europeans.

Several Provinces report definite signs of Congress activities in the direction of the no-tax campaign, but outside Gujarat there have been few instances up to the present of actual refusal to pay taxes.

A significant feature has been the organisation and expression of Mohammedan political aspirations for the practical work which

In the House of Commons to-day, Mr. E. C. Grenfell (Conservative, City of London) drew attention to the contract made by the Chinese Government on behalf of the Peking-Mukden Railway with a Dutch firm to construct the Halutao Harbour.

Mr. Arthur Henderson, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, stated that strong representations had been made to China to safeguard the interests of British creditors having prior claims on the revenues of the railway.

Bombay, June 2.

Congress is appealing for half a million volunteers to carry the boycott of British goods movement into the villages throughout India.

A public meeting was held at Wadala on Sunday to celebrate the so-called victory of the Satyagrahis at the salt depot. The speakers at the meeting appealed for volunteers to enlist defiance of the Viceroy's new ordinances.—Reuter.

LOCAL RESIDENTS HONOURED.

MR. D. W. TRATMAN & MR. R. M. DYER.

MRS. MORRIS RECEIVES THE M.B.E. DECORATION.

SERVICES RECOGNISED

Hongkong names appear in the King's Birthday Honours List, these including Mr. D. W. Tratman, who receives the C.M.G. decoration, and Mr. R. M. Dyer, who becomes a Commander of the Order of the British Empire. Mrs. Lily Morris receives the M.B.E. decoration, and several prominent Chinese are awarded certificates of Honour.

Mr. Tratman's Career.

Mr. David William Tratman is a First-Class Cadet Officer and a B.A. of Oxford. He was born on August 20th, 1881, and was appointed as a Cadet to the Hongkong Government in 1904, passing his final examination three years later.

In addition to serving in the New Territories, he has filled posts at the Land Office, Imports and Exports Office, Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, Sanitary Department (of which he has been Head), and has on several occasions acted as Colonial Treasurer.

He has also served in the Colonial Secretariat being acting Colonial Secretary quite recently. He rendered especially good service to the Colony during the water shortage last year. In 1925 he was a member of the Trade Loan Committee.

Mr. R. M. Dyer.

Mr. Robert Morton Dyer, B.Sc., M.I.N.A., has been Chief Manager of the Hongkong and Whampoa Dock Co., Ltd. for the past twenty years. He is a native of Glasgow, being a son of the late Professor Dyer, who many years ago came out East on a mission to Japan.

Mr. Dyer is one of the best-known and most popular members of the local Scottish community, and has been on two occasions President of the Hongkong St. Andrew's Society. He has particularly interested himself in the Scottish Company of the Volunteer Defence Corps, which he was largely instrumental in raising and equipping, and is a member of the Advisory Board of the Corps. He has also taken a prominent part in the movement for the creation of killed Boy Scouts locally.

Service to Colony.

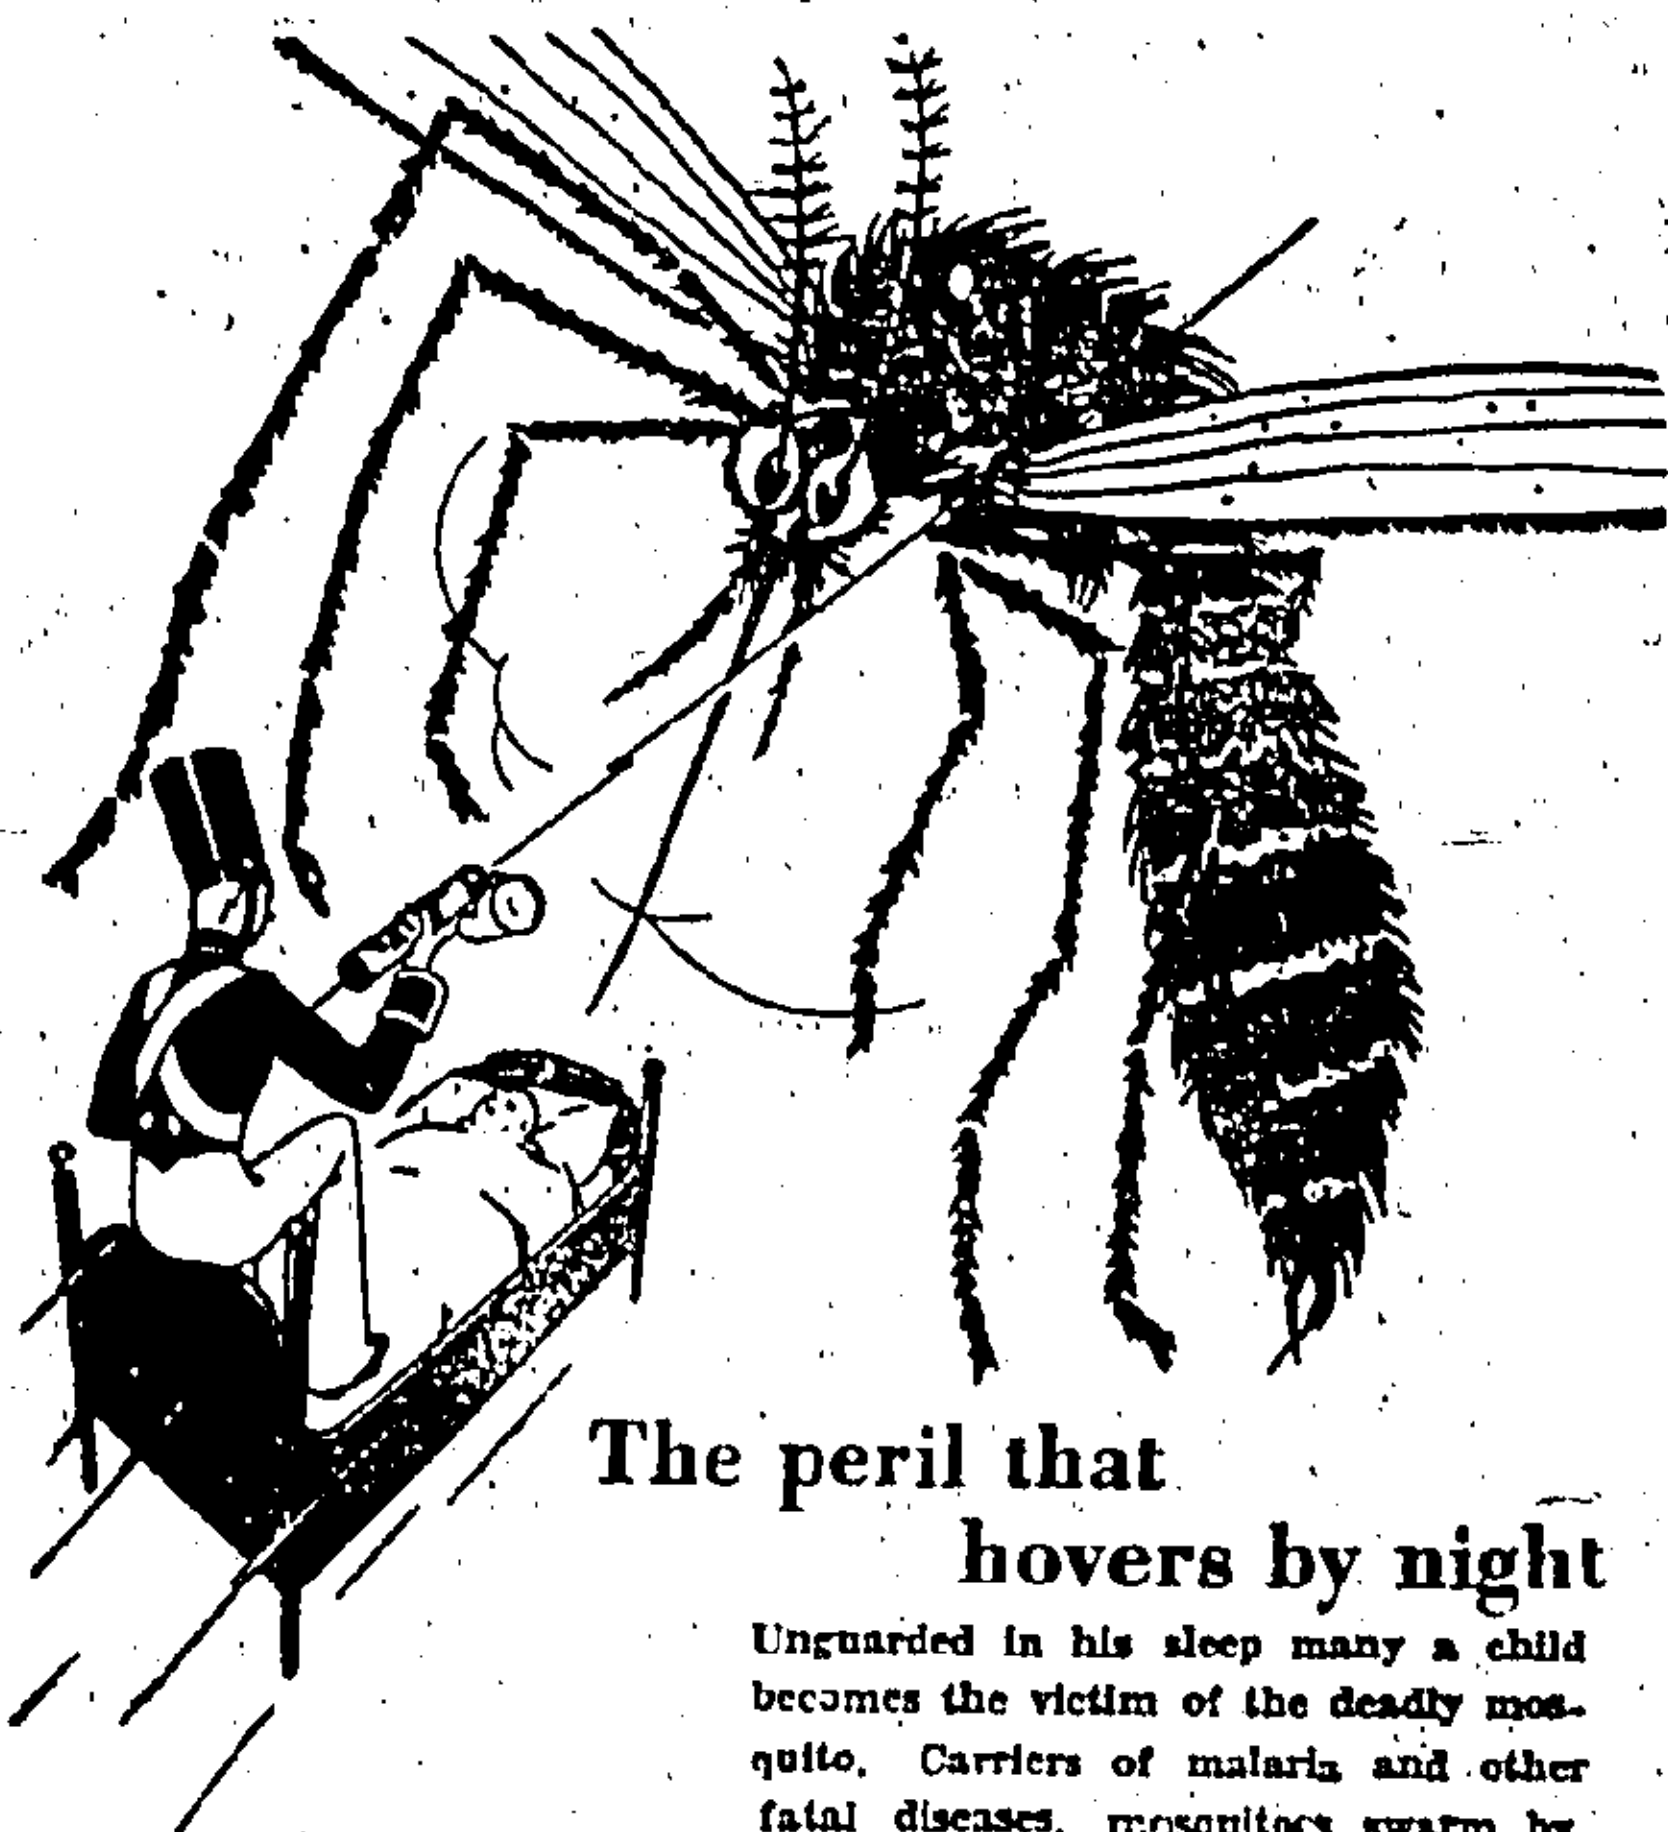

Mr. Dyer has served on many local Committees, including that on the Economic Resources of the Colony, is a member of the Court of the University of Hongkong, President of the Hongkong Rifle League, Steward of the Jockey Club, and a keen supporter of boxing, having been Chairman of the Boxing Association, Chairman of the Hongkong Club and President of the Hongkong Football Association. He is a member of the Hongkong Harbour Advisory Board and has been a Justice of the Peace since 1913.

As will be seen, Mr. Dyer has identified himself with many branches of sport in the Colony, whilst in social life he enjoys much popularity. He is known as being of a most generous disposition, and no worthy cause goes without his ready and willing assistance. We congratulate Mr. Dyer on his well-deserved honour.

Other Honours.

Other local honours conferred include the M.B.E. decoration for Mrs. Lily Morris, who has been for 24 years in the service of the Education Department and is at present on the staff of King's College, of which her husband, Mr. Alfred Morris, is Head Master. Mrs. Morris has made educational history in Hongkong because of her unique methods in teaching the rudiments of English to Chinese boys. Many Chinese in the Colony owe her a deep debt of gratitude and will be the first to congratulate her on her well-deserved honour.

Certificates of Honour, the recently-created decoration, have been awarded to Mr. Wong Kam-fuk, J.P., Mr. Lo Cheung-shiu, J.P., Mr. Tong Yat-chun, J.P., Mr. Kwok Siu-lai, J.P., and Mr. Tang Pak-kau.

OFFER TO TAKE BACK WIFE.

"NO MORE QUARRELLING," SAYS HUSBAND.

That the woman attempted suicide when brooding over her husband's inability to render financial assistance to her father, and not because of ill-treatment, was the suggestion made by Mr. F. X. D'Almada, Esq., in the case, resumed before Mr. Grantham yesterday, in which he is appearing for Chau Kee-lin, who is summoned by his wife for desertion.

Mr. D'Almada, in cross-examining the complainant, put it to her that she was well provided for in all respects, including an allowance of $10 per month pin-money.

Her reply was that her husband disregarded and neglected her entirely.

Mr. D'Almada: Are you a good-tempered woman?

She answered that she supposed she was, if she had been able to endure so long the cruelty and inattention of her husband. She admitted, in reply to other questions, that she did approach her husband for $20,000 as a measure of assistance for her own father, who had become bankrupt in business. "But when he said he was unable to do anything, I did not pursue the matter further. It ended there."

She knew that the family estate was not yet settled after the death of her father-in-law. She denied having attempted suicide because of her husband's failure to accede to her request. As a matter of fact, he was rarely at home, and he never took her out to dinners.

Often Quarrelling.

They were often quarrelling, but there were no attempts to make up. "How could that be since he would immediately walk out of the house?" she asked.

It was not true to say that after cutting her throat, her husband made it a point of seeing her at the Hospital every day. He visited her only twice in the course of her stay there.

After her discharge from Hospital, she went to the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs, and an official to whom she took her troubles, advised her to return to her mother for the time being. Except for saying that she was to go back to her mother first, he did not say anything else about her returning to her husband.

While with her mother at Kau Kong, she did not receive any communication from her husband or see anyone from his family. As she did not hear from him, she, on her part, refrained from sending him any letter.

Offer to Return.

On her return to Hongkong last month, she again interviewed the S.C.A., reporting to the official whom she saw there that she had unsuccessfully applied for maintenance money.

Mr. D'Almada, speaking for his client, made an offer to her that she return to her husband. "There is to be no more quarrelling," he assured her, "and you will be treated as a fat wife, with all the respect due to your status from everybody in the house."

Witness expressed her reluctance, doubting all would be as Mr. D'Almada says. "I have endured his treatment too long not to know what to expect. He has taken another wife and has left me in ignorance of it. This and other things make me afraid. I really do not know what sort of a man he is now."

After evidence was given by a former amah employed at the house, the case was adjourned until tomorrow afternoon.

Mr. M. K. Lo is appearing for the complainant.

Greens heard in the South-Western Dining Rooms, of a commercial hotel, led to the discovery of Mrs. Ida Hogg of Fourth-road, Cosham, Portsmouth, and Cecil Ambrose Cook, also of Fourth-road, Cosham. Both were unconscious and the room was full of gas. The woman and man were rushed to the infirmary and recovered later.

SERIOUS REVOLT IN SIBERIA.

VILLAGERS JOINING THE MUTINOUS MINERS.

Harbin, May 25.

Travellers arriving in Harbin from Vladivostok confirm reports which have been in circulation in North Manchuria for several days regarding serious insurrections at the Suchan mines in the Siberian Maritime province. The military authorities at Vladivostok have sent a detachment of the Far Eastern Red Army in an attempt to cope with the revolt, which started because of the serious food shortage. The Red authorities in the Maritime province are strictly suppressing the reports, and have strictly censored the newspapers on the Suchan happenings.

Hundreds of people are alleged to be arrested daily, and a report considered authentic in Harbin states that there are 20,000 peasants under arrest in the Maritime province, most of them being in Vladivostok. Guerrilla detachments are becoming active in the villages throughout the province. The Soviet authorities consider the situation highly dangerous, evidence of which is attested by the thousands of Russian peasants who continue to flee across the border into Manchuria.

Growing More Serious.

Harbin, May 26.
The revolt of peasants, farmers, villagers, fishermen and coal miners in the Siberian Maritime province is continuing to grow more serious according to authenticated reports from Vladivostok received in Harbin. Several mutinies have broken out in villages near Vladivostok, it being reported that a large mob of peasants held up a Trans-Siberian freight train at Razdolnaya station near Nikolai-Ussurusk, and looted several cars loaded with foodstuffs destined for the Far Eastern Red Army stationed at Vladivostok.

The workmen in the Suchan coal mines located eastward of Vladivostok have now been on strike for two weeks, and refuse to produce coal unless the Government takes steps to provide the mining community with food. Villagers in a number of towns in the vicinity of the Suchan mines have joined the revolt, the cause being the serious economic difficulties affecting the entire district. It is stated that the revolts are largely spontaneous and thus far are without leadership. The Soviet newspaper in Vladivostok called the Red Flag, copies of which have arrived in Harbin, contains veiled references to the peasant trouble.

People arriving in Harbin from Vladivostok state that severe clashes have occurred between soldiers and the Kulaki (proprietary) peasants and that several Red soldiers have been killed and wounded. The situation in Vladivostok is seriously strained.—Canton News Agency.

WEDDING "PLOT" STORY.

GIRL IN CASE SAYS SHE TOLD POLICE.

An amazing story of a forced marriage plot in which the unwilling bridegroom was held up at revolver's point was related at Dundrum when four men were committed for trial.

There were five accused in the dock; Patrick Fitzpatrick, Martin Fitzgerald, Christopher Ryan, of Tipperary, were charged with kidnapping and assaulting Thomas Wood, of Old Castle, Cappawhite.

Timothy Reardon and Edward Carroll a motor-driver, were accused of aiding and abetting. Carroll was discharged.

The Girl's Story.

A dense crowd showed tense interest in the strange drama. Lizzie Breigh, aged 23, the young woman whom it was sought to compel Woods to marry and who gave evidence at a previous court, now stated that since the kidnapping, Woods had agreed to marry her, "except," she added significantly, "he changes his mind about it."

She also stated that three weeks before the kidnapping, she went to the Civic Guards barracks at Cappawhite and complained to Sergt. Cullen about Woods.

"I told the sergeant," she said, "I was going to get a party of my brothers and cousins to take Woods to the church, where the priest would settle about getting us married."

Thomas Woods, the kidnapped man said that on Sunday Christopher Ryan met him with a revolver. "Fitzgerald came up and said he was Lizzie's brother."

"He asked me if I was prepared to marry her," said Woods. "I told him I didn't see why I should."

Dramatic Scene.

"Fitzgerald and Fitzpatrick ordered me to get ready to go to a clergyman to get married."

"I tried to run away, but they compelled me to get in a motor-car, again at the point of a revolver."

"As we were talking Detective Kelly and Sergt. Cullen of the Civic Guard appeared and ordered the men to put up their hands."

Mr. Darcy (cross-examining): Are you going to marry Lizzie Breigh now?

Woods: No, sir.

$40,000 BETTING WIN.

BOY EARL'S NAME USED IN ERROR.

The Earl of Kerry's name has been linked up in an amazing way with the story of a $40,000 "double" on the Lincoln and Grand National.

An advertisement was published that "Lord Kerry" had won $40,000 by the double, but the bookmakers concerned explained that this was a fictitious name.

The real Lord Kerry is the 16-year-old son of the Marquis of Lansdowne and a schoolboy at Eton.

The following statement was made by Mr. H. Martin Benson, of Douglas Stuart, Ltd., commission agents, regarding the announcement.

Another Winner.

"The advertisement did not refer to Lord Kerry. It was true that a man did win $40,000 in a double on the Lincoln and the Grand National, but he is not Lord Kerry."

Something Every Child
Should Know.

Regularity of the daily habit, and systematic training in its practice, are of the utmost importance for every child. Neglect of this hygienic rule causes much sickness among children and greatly hinders their healthy development.

Proper diet and plenty of play in the open air are the chief factors in keeping your little ones regular and well. Over-eating, too many sweets, insufficient outdoor exercise, are the most general causes of their stomach and bowel troubles.

When a laxative is necessary use Baby's Own Tablets for your children, because these little lozenges are especially devised for childhood's use, being pleasant in taste, mild in action, and altogether safe. They quickly correct infantile indigestion, colic, constipation, check diarrhoea, cool feverishness, relieve colds and croup, banish worms, allay teething pains almost as if by magic.

Your chemist can supply Baby's Own Tablets, or post free at 60 cents per vial from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., 60, Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

The Colonial Dispensary

13, Queen's Road, Central.
Tel. No. 21877.FILM APPARATUS
THEFT.NEW INVENTION BY A GERMAN CHEMIST.

Secret apparatus to produce talking films in natural colours, alleged to have been stolen, formed the subject of an unusual prosecution at Bow-street. Three men, Robert Dykes, 52, cinema photographer, Cedar-avenue, Twickenham; Cyril Barker, 36, operator electrician, Huron-road, Balham; and Albert Marriott, 36, experimental engineer, Garlinge-road, Brondesbury, were charged on remand with stealing parts of cinematograph apparatus, value £80, belonging to their employers, the Talkie Colour Co., Ltd., Berkeley-street, W.

The defence was that there was a bona fide claim to the property by another company, Raycol, Ltd. Mr. Comyns Carr, K.C., who, with Mr. H. D. Roome and Mr. Purchase, appeared for the prosecution, said that the Talkie Colour Co. was started to produce a process of taking talking moving pictures in natural colour, invented by Dr. Bernadi, a chemist.

Doctor's Secret.

Dr. Bernadi was formerly head of the research department of the German dye interests, and if his invention was successful it would be of immense value.

Dr. Bernadi had previously disposed of another invention to Raycol Ltd., but owing to a dispute he left and became associated with the Talkie Colour Co., the moving spirit in which was Sir Rhys Williams, K. C.

"The invention is the subject of provisional protection under the Patent Acts, but as such Dr. Bernadi is not entitled to restrain anyone from infringing his invention and it is of great importance that it should remain a secret," said Mr. Comyns Carr.

"There is little doubt that the primary object of the alleged theft was not the possession of pieces of metal and other oddments," he continued, "but to use and examine them for the purpose of discovering Dr. Bernadi's secret."

Mr. Carr added that the three men charged were formerly employed by Raycol, Ltd., and left to join the prosecuting company, and assisted Dr. Bernadi.

"Parts Disappeared."

The portions of the apparatus disappeared from a studio at Elstree, where they had been taken to produce a film by the Eleanor Glyn Productions, Ltd.

The studio had been hired at £1,000 a week, and the expense of taking the pictures amounted to something like £100 an hour, but after the disappearance of the apparatus in question it became impossible to proceed with the work.

Mr. Comyns Carr asked that the apparatus should be returned to the Talkie Colour Company on the ground of the terrible loss which its absence entailed and Mr. Walter Brampton, defending, agreed to its remaining in the hands of the prosecuting company on their undertaking to produce it in court whenever required.

Sir Rhys Williams was giving evidence when the hearing was again adjourned.

OF CIGARS.

One evening, 30 years ago, some French and foreign students were merry in a famous cafe in the Latin Quarter, when a young foreign student came in and asked if someone would lend him 25 francs (then worth £1).

A young Frenchman, who has since become a well-known journalist, said: "You want 25 francs? Well, here are 50. Pay me back when you can."

"The foreigner thanked him, and asked him for his name, saying, 'I will never forget it.'"

All that was forgotten by the journalist till recently, when—30 years after the loan—the journalist received a case of 3,000 cigars from Havana.

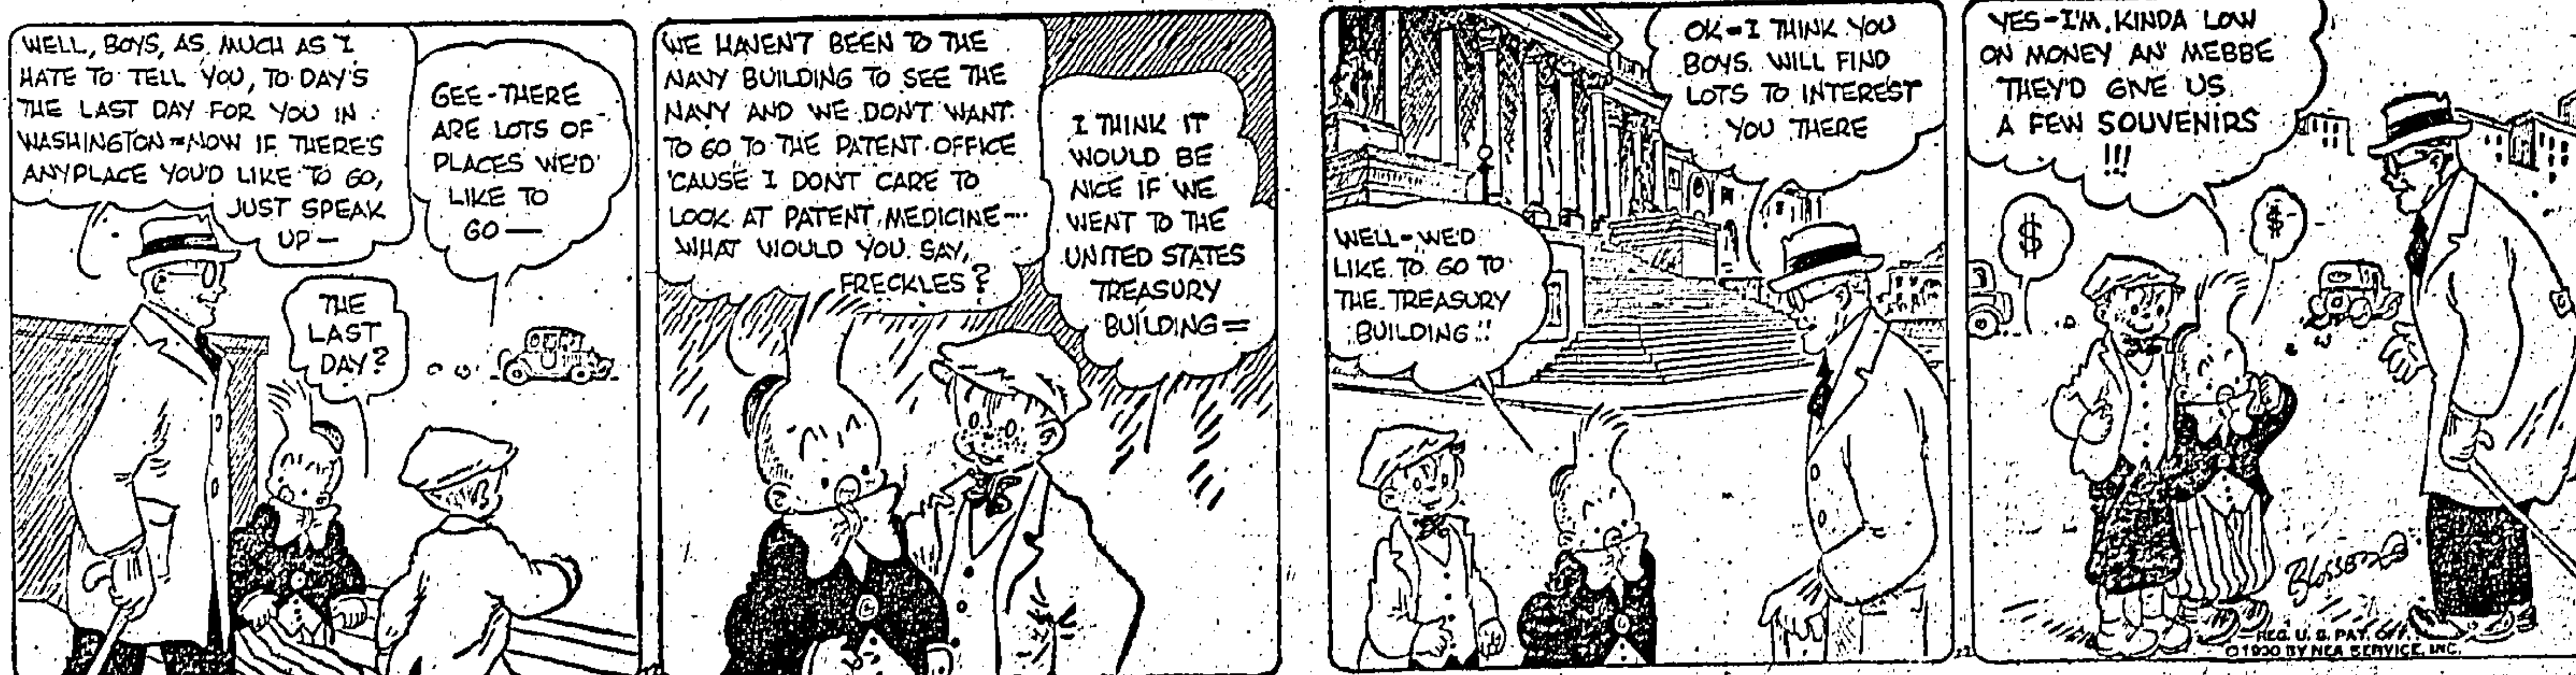

A letter explained that the parcel was from General Machado, President of the Republic of Cuba. "You probably no longer remember the student whom you obliged one evening," wrote the President.

"As you have become a great journalist, so I have become President of my country; and I am sending you these cigars by way of thanking you for an act that saved me long ago."

TUESDAY, JUNE 3, 1930.

THE KING.

Loyal subjects in all parts of the Empire will to-day join in wishing for His Majesty the King many more years of life and activity as the living symbol of the great British Commonwealth of which he is the head. King George to-day celebrates his 65th birthday, and although a temporary indisposition makes it inadvisable that he should personally participate in the big public celebration in London, there will be widespread gratification that His Majesty is now well on the way to complete recovery from the painful attack which he has for the past week or so had to bear. Happily, his sickness is in no way associated with the serious illness which brought His Majesty almost to death's door some eighteen months ago. Those dark days have passed, but to-day we can recall them as having, if possible, brought King and people closer than ever together in the bonds of love and affection.

Some few weeks ago, His Majesty celebrated the 20th anniversary of his accession to the Throne. The occasion was marked not only by loving messages from all parts of the world, but also by glowing tributes to his kingly qualities. To have occupied a European Throne from 1910 to 1930 is to have crowded into twenty years the history of almost a century. The world has been in convulsion; dynasties and Empires and States have disappeared. But through it all, King George has quietly and unselfishly carried out the duties brought him by his birth. To-day, the British Throne stands as secure as ever it was, and it is a mere statement of fact to say that this is so because of the high sense of duty and the fine personal worth of its present occupant. As Professor Nicholas Murray Butler, President of one of America's greatest Universities, expressed it the other day, "King George's gracious sympathy with every form of human aspiration, and his manifest support of all movements to bind the nations of the world together more closely, have made him a truly, powerful influence in the great events of his time." As another commentator remarked, Kings who deserve the title "great" do not distinguish themselves in battles and conquests, but excel in the degree to which they can win the respect and love of the people, and in the dignity of their public and private life. By this standard, King George V. can rightly claim to be placed amongst the truly great.

The King's loyalty to the Constitution and to his Ministers is unswerving, but, as a writer recently remarked in summing up His Majesty's twenty years' occupancy of the Throne, behind the Constitutional monarch there stands the man of flesh and blood, watching paternally and tirelessly, and too often with anxiety, to note what may serve to help or what might tend to hinder his country's interests. Happy the Sovereign who can represent, as King George so abundantly does, and incorporate in his own person just the qualities which have formed the national character and on which the national character has been built up. If modern institutions have done something to relieve sovereignty of its burden, there still remain more than enough to cause those to whom the King's life is precious—and every Briton is included in the category—to pray that circumstances may tend to lighten the care which is his main concern: the care of the people who have been committed to his charge, and whom he seeks, in the teeth of great difficulty, to "preserve in wealth, peace and godliness." Hongkong, small jewel in the Imperial Crown though it be, joins in the prayer that His Majesty may long be spared to reign over those whose well-being and happiness is his great and constant concern.

Church and Parish.

According to the Bishop of Durham, Disestablishment is probable within the next few years and he suggests that Church people should take it for granted and concentrate attention on a reorganisation of the Church which will minimise the shock. The Bishop goes further, however. He challenges the parochial system and suggests a drastic handling of it which he admits to be "hardly distinguishable from its abolition." The latter suggestion involves a bigger change than Disestablishment, as the Church parish is one of the oldest institutions—older far than Parliament. It might be said that to attack the parish is to undermine the foundations of the whole ecclesiastical structure, but the parish was made for man, not man for the parish. The organisation is undoubtedly crumbling in parts of England where villages have well nigh disappeared leaving the church and parson and a tiny group of parishioners. Glaringly disproportionate conditions prevail, but these facts do not necessarily mean that the parochial system is doomed entirely. The long continued shortage in ordination candidates is beginning to tell disastrously on the practical work of the Church. Not only are many inadequately trained men being ordained in England but well staffed parishes, which are normal centres for training the clergy in pastoral work, are becoming fewer and fewer. The closing of superfluous buildings and the suppression of superfluous parishes are probably more urgently wanted now than additions to the number of buildings and parishes. The Bishop of Durham's views will, probably leave old-fashioned Churchfolk somewhat breathless, but it is becoming more and more evident that some re-organisation in the Church is necessary. There would appear to be no need to abolish the parochial system as developed by our ancestors in their wisdom, but there is a very real need to adjust the system to changed conditions.

The rainfall during last month totalled 7.99 inches, according to the records taken at the Botanic Gardens. There were 15 rainy days out of the 31, the heaviest rainfall being on the 8th with 2.60 inches, the next being the 11th with 1.42 inch and the 24th with 1.03. The smallest precipitation was on the 29th with .02 inch and the next smallest on the 27th with .03 inch.

ELEPHANT RUNS AWAY.

THRILL IN STREETS OF MONMOUTH.

Visitors to the annual Mop Fair at Monmouth received an unexpected thrill when an elephant suddenly rushed out into the street.

Men, women and children dashed helter-skelter for safety while the keeper and attendants began an exciting chase.

The animal was attached to a circus which is one of the attractions of the fair.

Apparently it was disturbed by the sight of a number of cattle being driven to the adjoining market as it was being led by its trainer near the Monnow Bridge.

The bridge was crowded, and people were astonished when the elephant suddenly lifted its trunk and trumpeted terrifically.

Then, to everyone's amazement, it dashed away from its keeper, and thundered ponderously towards St. Thomas's-square.

The people scattered. Two men were on the point of jumping from the bridge into the river, but refrained as the animal crashed past them and away towards the square.

To add to the excitement, horses attached to vehicles bolted.

Doors Locked.

Women rushed into the nearest house, slamming the doors behind them.

The elephant attacked no one, however, but swung out of the square and into Drybridge-street.

It careered along into Wonaton-road, where men leaped over walls for safety.

Wonaton-road leads to open country, and once out of the town, the animal slowed up and its trainer was able to approach.

"All right, Rosie," he called. Then the attendants came up and Rosie was soon shackled with heavy chains on the forelegs.

As though it had all been according to plan, the animal then allowed himself to be led docilely back to the circus.

"This is the first time Rosie has ever behaved like this," the proprietor said later.

"She is only four years old, and I hope she will not do it again."

A SENSATIONAL WAR BOOK.

ALLEGED IMMORALITY IN THE ARMY.

STORM OF PROTEST.

The sensational war book written by Brigadier-General F. P. Crozier has aroused a storm of criticism. General Crozier has outdone Remarque in his attempt to show by lurid pen-pictures certain of the worst aspects of war, but, in that effort he has run the risk of making it appear that the whole British Army in France was both immoral and undisciplined, says a Morning Post correspondent.

Mr. R. C. Sherriff, the famous author of "Journey's End," strongly deprecated the growing tendency to show the darkest side of the war picture.

"I am no advocate of glossing over unpleasant subjects," he said, "but it does seem to me grossly unfair that only one side should be shown. As well write a book about railway porters, and show them all as drunken and incompetent. This would be terribly unfair to a large body of workers. In the same way certain war books are just as unfair to the British soldier."

In his view no possible good could come from accentuating the evil side of war to the exclusion of the nobler side.

Army Libelled.

I also talked with soldiers who, like Brigadier-General Crozier, commanded men in the field and had every opportunity of knowing what the conditions in France were.

They one and all expressed the view that, judging from the extracts given in a recent Morning Post, the whole Army had been libelled because of the presence, among the fighting troops, of an inconsiderable number who had brought dishonour on their units.

The low moral standard which Brigadier-General Crozier emphasises in his book was, they state, apparent only in the few; the many honourably upheld the great traditions for which the British Army is rightly famous.

General Sir Ian Hamilton, who commanded the troops in the Dardanelles campaign, stated: "All I can say is that the alleged conduct was entirely and absolutely alien to anything that took place in the Dardanelles."

Sick and Tired.

The view of Lieutenant-General Bethune, who was Director-General of the Territorial Force from 1912 to 1917, has already been given. "I am sick and tired," he added, "of these people who talk about soldiers as drunken brutes."

Miss Violet Douglas-Pennant, formerly Commandant of the Women's Royal Air Force, said: "I certainly did not experience anything of the kind, and allegations of immorality on a whole scale are absolutely untrue and most unfair."

Commandant Mary Allen, of the Women's Police Service, said: "There really were extraordinary temptations which made immorality just as inevitable as the rising and setting of the sun," as General Crozier says. But this was primarily a matter of circumstances, rather than of sex."

Other Views.

Other views expressed were: Mr. Boyd Cable: "It is a rotten shame for authors to pick out one or two isolated instances of immorality. We all know that such isolated instances existed, but to drag them out and parade them in this manner to-day is absolutely unfair and dishonest."

Mr. Andrew Soutar, who served in the Air Force during the War, said: "I am sorry that any man, be he private, sergeant or 'brass hat,' should deem it necessary to make money out of a great adventure."

Mr. Jonathan Cape (the publisher of the book): "I think the book defends itself. General Crozier has written it from his own experience, and has confined it to those areas in which he actually served. He wrote it, I imagine, as a corrective to aspects which have been shown in some recent war books, and I do not regard it as a piece of sensationalism."

Mr. R. Boswell, a partner of John Lane, the publishers: "The wind must blow freely, so to speak, and it is not a publisher's business to suppress any particular side."

General Crozier Replies.

"People who think that my book disparages those who fought in the war have got hold of the wrong end of the stick," General Crozier stated. "Anyone who has read my book must see that the reverse is the case."

"I have deliberately attacked a system which I consider to be vicious and bad, and that system is called war. I do not attack the victims of that system."

Referring to criticisms of the passages in the book relating to sex and drink, General Crozier stated: "It is impossible to invent fairy-tales as to how the

There were some very fine chaplains at the front. They served a useful purpose when they gave out cigarettes and that sort of thing. But their usefulness was limited to that."

WHO WAS BOLINGBROKE?

Banished by Richard II, because of a well-founded fear that he aspired to the throne Henry Bolingbroke returned to England a few years later and gathered an army together for the ostensible reason of regaining his estates from the King. His real intention soon became apparent, however, for he lost no time after the victory of the rebel forces to depose and imprison Richard and seize the crown himself, the deposed King being murdered by an overzealous knight who took Bolingbroke's words too literally.

According to Shakespeare's magnificent plays, the kingship seems to have brought Bolingbroke but scant joy. Conspiracy was rife in the realm, and in no long time there was open rebellion, besides which, he was very much concerned about the dissolute behaviour of his son, Prince Hal, the boon companion of Sir John Falstaff. He came to the sad conclusion that "uneasy is the head that wears the crown," and died a broken and disappointed old man.

You may read about him in "Richard II," and in "King Henry IV"—two plays adame with the pageantry of old England.

TRADE CONFLICT
FORECAST.DOMINION OPINIONS AT THE PRESS BANQUET.

PREFERENCE ISSUE.

London, June 2.
Major John Astor presided at the distinguished Press banquet at the London Guildhall given in honour of the Overseas delegates to the Empire Press Conference. There were 450 people present, representative of every branch of British journalism.

A message from His Majesty the King, in reply to a loyal telegram sent during the morning, was read. In it His Majesty stressed the importance of the Conference for he knew how much such Conferences contributed to the promotion of sympathy and understanding. In conclusion, His Majesty wished the Conference every success.

Responding to Major Astor's eloquent welcome, Mr. Wood, the leader of the Canadian delegation, contrasted Lord Roseberry's prophetic utterance at the 1909 conference, in which he referred to the hush preceding the storm, with the present day hush preceding a trade conflict.

Mr. Wood said he believed the Empire would come out of it as a strong entity able to face the rest of the world on an equal basis.

Mr. Fink, the Australian leader, looked with alarm and disquietude on the possible legal use of the powers of autonomy in the Dominions. He said the Dominion's grant of preference had now existed for forty years and it could not remain open for ever.

He stressed that Britain had to decide whether an economic theory, however academic and authoritative, was to stand in the way of Empire consolidation.—Reuter.

RECTOR WALKS OUT.

"SHAMELESS GOSSIP" TO BE FOUGHT.

There was a scene at the Acton Easter Vestry meeting when the vicar, the Rev. Percival Gough, refused to take the chair and left the room.

For two years there has been a dispute between the rector and the parochial church council, originating with the resignation of two newly appointed churchwardens.

Saying he did not allow his life and the lives of his wife and family to be made miserable, the rector declared that he would not preside at any meeting in the parish until he had received the official records of the past year, and had approved the financial statement and balance-sheet.

"I will fight to the last farthing in the proper courts," the rector said, "the shameless gossip engendered by the recent canvass of the parish to influence this meeting. I will safeguard for myself and all future rectors of Acton the unimpeded leadership of those who will co-operate with me."

After the rector had left the meeting Mr. J. Stone was nominated as rector's warden. Dr. J. Mackey, who was re-elected people's warden, declared that he had been actuated by loyalty to the church.

The dispute between the rector and the church council is with regard to the allocation of church funds and matters of church discipline. The rector complains that the choirboys were taken to a music hall without his consent and that the sidesmen held a supper during Lent.

BANNS SCENE IN TWO CHURCHES.PARENTS OBJECT TO MINER
SON-IN-LAW.

"I protest!" This dramatic interruption occurred during a service at Coalville (Leicester) Parish Church.

It came from the mother of a girl, Linda Bruce, daughter of a Ravenstone constable, the banns of whose marriage to John Danvers, a Coalville miner, were being published.

At the same time, P.-c. Bruce was lodging a similar objection at St. Saviour's Church, Leicester.

The vicar of Coalville asked the mother to see him in the vestry after the service.

The daughter like her fiancé, is 21, reiterated who, in an interview, her intention of marrying Danvers.

She said that her parents had gone too far with their objections. Miss Bruce added that they objected to the wedding because her fiancé was a miner, but she did not think that ought to make any difference.

SHOT ENDS BRIEF
ROMANCE.DEATH TRAGEDY ON ROAD
AT LOCARNO.

DAYLIGHT AFFAIR.

In the lovely Swiss holiday region around Locarno there is much public excitement over the shooting of a beautiful young wife, on a public road, where she was walking with her handsome young husband in broad daylight.

She was German; he was Italian, his name being Cecchini.

It appears that the pair had been examining a villa belonging to the wife's father, Dr. Koppel, a Berlin industrial notable. The villa was to be renovated for their use.

They were walking slowly down a public road, near the villa, the husband two paces behind the wife. People in the villa garden say they saw Cecchini pull out a revolver, place it at the back of his wife's head, and fire two shots.

Cecchini, they say, was placing the revolver near his wife's body, as it might have been if she had committed suicide, but he fled when he saw men running towards him. Taking a taxi, the husband had disappeared; but he was recognised and arrested in a street of Lugano.

Beauty And Beau.

Cecchini, who is 23 years old, is the type of an Italian beau—particularly handsome, and said to be descended from a noble Florentine family.

His wife, who was exactly 23, her birthday being her deathday, was a well-known Berlin beauty.

She met Cecchini on a visit to Italy, but her friends had not expected the Berlin belle to marry him, as she was passionately devoted to art, while the husband had purely business instincts. He is a hat manufacturer.

It was suggested that she had married in order to live in the beautiful places of Italy and Switzerland.

Incompatibility.

They had been married only six months. They frequently quarrelled, it was said, because the wife would not accept the Italian's views of married women's rights and duties.

Some Locarno people tell of a serious quarrel after a recent visit to a cinema. When Cecchini boxed his wife's ears in the market-place, it is said, the wife spoke of a divorce.

It is known that the husband bought a revolver on the previous day.

LIVING LINK WITH
NELSON.MAN WHO JOINED NAVY
83 YEARS AGO.

A man who joined the Royal Navy no less than 83 years ago as an A.B. and left it 40 years later as a commissioned officer has just celebrated his 96th birthday.

He is Mr. James John Mills, of Beatrice-avenue, Plymouth, and he recalls vividly the days when sailors received 6d. a day and were fed on salt pork and biscuits.

Mr. Mills provides a living link with Nelson, for his first ship was the San Joseph, 120 guns, which was captured by Nelson from the Spaniards.

Thrills fell to the lot of this jolly Jack Tar of the "wooden walls of England" which are never likely to happen to his successors of to-day. He tells of days when floggings were the punishment for the most minor offences.

When he spent four unbroken and painful hours in the rigging at night off Cape Horn trying to furl a main topsail which had split.

When his ship—then the Caledonia—chased a gang of blood-thirsty pirates (who had murdered an English captain and crew), and saw five of them shot on the beach at Valparaiso.

He also tells of service in the Crimean War, and a time when he went to Smyrna and there superintended the excavation of pieces of stone from the Temple of Diana of Ephesus, and their dispatch to the British Museum.

One of these pieces weighed over 11 tons.

When the Great War broke out, this typical old sea dog of Devon asked the Admiralty for permission to do his bit, but his services were not accepted owing to his age.

While people were helping to save a girl, assistant whose clothing was on fire in a Liverpool shop, others entered and began to clear the till and loot the place. This fact was revealed at the inquest on Marian Bright, age 16, who died from burns caused by her clothing becoming ignited at a gas fire. Thomas Flynn, a dock labourer, was commended for dashing into the shop and flinging his coat round the burning girl.

SEGRAVE'S BID FOR RECORD.SECRETS OF POWERFUL NEW MOTOR BOAT.

UNORTHODOX CRAFT.

Sir Henry Segrave is to attempt to capture the world's speed record on water for Great Britain on Lake Windermere about the middle of June, with a new motor-boat that revolutionises all accepted theories.

Miss England II, as the new boat is to be called, has been built for Sir Charles Wakefield, and he will launch it at Cowes, Isle of Wight, on June 1.

Details of the craft have been kept a closely-guarded secret. Sir Henry told a representative of the Daily Chronicle that its construction was so unorthodox that it was impossible to say what its speed capabilities are.

Two Rolls-Royce F type Schneller Trophy engines will be used, by permission of the Air Ministry, and these will develop over 4,000 h.p., and drive a single propeller at 12,500 revolutions per minute.

This has astounded the experts, both here and in America, who have always held that such a speed was impossible.

A new type of construction designed by Sir Henry Segrave and Mr. Fred Cooper has been employed that will place Miss England II far ahead in design of any racing craft in the world.

To Race at Detroit.

After launching, the boat will be taken to Lake Windermere on a specially-constructed 12-wheeled lorry, and the trials will take place immediately.

After the attempt on the record, which is at present held by Commodore Gar Wood, of America, at 96.24 m.p.h., Miss England II will be shipped to Detroit for the British International Trophy race, which takes place on August 9.

There will be six competitors—Sir Henry Segrave's Miss England II, Miss Betty Carstairs' two Estelles, and three American boats.

CINEMA NOTES.

APPLAUSE PUTS MONEY IN ACTORS' POCKETS.

It sounds easy enough—to earn your day's wages by doing nothing but sit in a theatre set and applaud upon command.

That's what several hundred extra players did for some days at the United Artists studios in Hollywood during the filming of "Puttin' on the Ritz," starring Harry Richman, which is now on the screen at the Queen's Theatre.

But the army of extras assert they'd rather storm the Bastille or dance all day in a ballroom set or stand at court and cry, "What Ho! His Majesty!" at intervals.

It was terrifically hot, for one thing, and for another, the peculiarities of the theatre set made it necessary to shower dazzling floods of light into the eyes of the spectators at the theatre.

"Puttin' on the Ritz," which brings the popular Broadway singer to the screen, features a number of original songs written for the picture by Irving Berlin. Edward Sloman directed the picture, and the large supporting cast includes Joan Bennett, James Gleason, Aileen Pringle, Lilyan Tashman, Purnell Pratt, Richard Tucker, Eddie Kane and others.

LIFE RISKED FOR A
PIGEON.LOWERED 20 FEET ON A MUD-BANK.

THAMES DRAMA.

This is the story of a life risked for a City pigeon.

As home-bound workers were passing over Blackfriars Bridge it was noticed that a pigeon was floundering hopelessly in the mud of the foreshore.

A large crowd assembled and there were sympathetic murmurs as it was noticed that the more the bird struggled the deeper it became entrapped in the mire.

Then a homeless youth named Eric Stanley pushed his way through the crowd and volunteered to be lowered over the parapet.

A passing van was stopped and fibre ropes from a cargo of orange boxes were obtained. These were knotted together and Stanley, clinging to one end of the rope, was lowered 20 feet over the parapet down on to the mud-bank.

In places the mud is ten feet deep, and before the youth could reach the now exhausted bird, he had sunk nearly up to his thighs in the mire. Had he stumbled forward he would certainly have been suffocated.

He captured the bird, and began to fight his way back, but found that he was trapped. He was rapidly sinking in the mud.

Firemen on the Blackfriars fire float, seeing his plight, pushed off in a boat to rescue him.

Youth and pigeon were lifted on board amid the cheers of the on-lookers, but unfortunately the bird was so exhausted by its struggle that it died a few minutes later.

Stanley was taken to "Bart's," where, after his clothes had been dried and he had been given a hot drink, he was allowed to leave.

BOY NAVVIES OF
PUBLIC SCHOOL.EXCAVATING TO MAKE NEW GAMES GROUND.

Boys of Tettenhall College, the public school in Staffs, have undertaken the task of moving 450 tons of soil on land adjoining the school.

The digging and levelling is necessary for the construction of tennis courts and a cricket pitch, and all the boys composing the work-gangs have volunteered for the job.

They work during the afternoon and evening, during what normally might be games time.

For a number of weeks last term, when the work was started, the boys were regularly seen in shirts, pullovers, shorts, flannels, or plus-fours, delving gallantly in the sandy soil with spades, shovels and barrows.

They will carry on with the work this term, but it will not be finished in time to use the ground this summer. The headmaster regards the work as valuable training.

The boys are to accomplish the clearing of the ground and the laying of the courts and pitch entirely without professional aid, the only supervision being that of the "foreman" of the gang—an assistant master.

SECRET SERVICES
AT WORK.SOME STORIES OF THE GREAT WAR.

ZINOVIEFF LETTER.

A study of the intricate espionage systems of various of the combatant countries in the war, and more particularly the story of Mata Hari, the Dutch courtesan whose fame was international and who became a German spy, is given in "Mata Hari" by Major Thomas Coulson (Hutchinson and Co., 12s. 6d. net).

Mata Hari, who joined the German Secret Service before the war, returned on its outbreak to Paris, where she had previously appeared in vaudeville. Here, under the cloak of her profession as a courtesan, in which capacity she entertained officers, diplomats and high French officials on a lavish scale, she conducted her operations as a spy. Competent French authorities, states Major Coulson (who was in the English Secret Service) declare that the losses which can be attributed directly to her intrigues amounted to nearly 50,000 men.

Final Proof of Guilt.

It is considered that most of this number are to be accounted for by the information which she was able to give the Germans of the impending French attack on the Chemin des Dames.

When final proof of her guilt came through an intercepted and decoded radio message she was tried, found guilty and was shot.

Many of the stories in this book do not concern Mata Hari at all. One deals with Captain Reilly, the British Admiralty's "ace" in espionage, who was responsible for securing the famous Zinovieff letter, which was instrumental in wrecking the first Socialist Government.

Reilly, after the war, was sent to Russia, and rapidly gained a confidential position under Lenin. It was while in the Russian Foreign Office that he saw this letter, and judging that it would be of interest to his employers, went into Germany to see to its safe despatch. The O.G.P.U. followed him and picked up Reilly's train as he was returning to Russia.

"No sooner was the frontier line passed," Major Coulson writes, "than these agents took Reilly off the train and, without even the apology of a trial, riddled his body with bullets."

German Spies Rounded Up.

The author also relates how it came about that every German spy in England, with one exception, was rounded up on the first night of the war. Some time previously, while the Emperor William was on a visit to the King, it was observed by Scotland Yard that one of the high German officials left Buckingham Palace to visit a German barber in the Caledonian-road. Following that incident, the barber was watched, and it was discovered that he was the German Foreign Office's "letter-box."

Through this discovery the British authorities were able to ascertain the spies employed by the German Foreign Office, and at the proper time to put them under lock and key.

The secret service had its amusing side. In England the intelligence services of the Army and the Navy are separate departments, and on one occasion Sir Reginald Hall, the head of the Admiralty Intelligence Service, came into contact with a German spy. He decided to use him.

The Menace Met.

Wishing to deceive the enemy about a certain naval concentration that was in contemplation, he allowed this spy to have access to the false knowledge that the ships were collecting in order to cover a landing of troops somewhere between the Ems and the Weser.

The information was duly passed on, and the Germans immediately dispatched several reserve divisions to meet the menace. In the meantime, the English secret service was not behindhand in detecting this suspicious movement of German troops, and the War Office, receiving their reports, decided that the Germans were about to invade this country. Defence plans were drawn up, and it was not until the Admiralty were consulted that the origin of the "Invasion" was discovered.

Having travelled unaccompanied from their home in Canton, Ohio, three lads, Allan, aged six, Ray, aged four, and Jack Smith, aged two, were met at Liverpool off the Cunarder Samaria by their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. W. Cross, of Co. Durham. Their uncle and aunt had never seen the children before, but recognised them readily by photographs which had been sent on ahead. There is a sad story behind the children's voyage. Their mother died of pneumonia in February, and their father was unable to take care of them.

FREEDOM OF THE YOUTH.

PRIMATE AND THE PERIL OF SILENCE.

A GREAT CHANGE.

The Archbishop of Canterbury in an address at the Mansion House referred to the changes which had taken place in the moral outlook of people, especially with regard to questions of sex, in the last generation.

He was speaking at a meeting in aid of the London Diocesan Council for Rescue Work.

"Since I ceased to be chairman of this council, some 22 years ago," he said, "I notice how silence in the matter of sex has given place to complete and free discussion. In these days there is no subject comparable to this subject of sex in the perpetual discussion of every class of the community."

Became an Obsession.

"This is a great improvement. In the old days silence drove one of the necessarily natural interests—especially to the young—within. And in some cases, because it failed to find any natural and spontaneous expression, it became an obsession, or else it was a matter for discussion in the most cynical and unhealthful manner."

"Nowadays, people recognise this is one of the great fundamental questions of human nature and human society, and all thoughtful Christians and citizens ought to be ready to take their part in discussing the great problems with which it deals."

"I would rather have all the risks which come from free discussion than the greater risks which we run by a conspiracy of silence."

Double Lives.

"There are none of us now who would base the foundations of a moral life, any more than of a religious life, upon the words 'Thou shalt not.'"

"We want to liberate the sex impulse from the impression that it is always to be surrounded by negative warnings and restraints, and to place it in its rightful place among the great creative things of every joyous boy and girl."

"In the new freedom of relationship between the sexes, which in itself I welcome, there are also lurking dangers."

"There are multitudes of our young people of both sexes who are supposed to be living outwardly a perfectly respectable life, who, more than once, and sometimes habitually, are indulging in a manner which would have shamed the conscience of men in the past, and brought disastrous consequences to the girls."

LASCAR MYSTERY DEVELOPS.

POLICE RECEIVE MESSAGE: FOULPLAY HINT.

INQUEST ADJOURNED.

The police are investigating anew the mysterious death of Gonoo Miah, a Lascar, who was found hanging from a steam pipe in the transport Nevasa in Southampton Water.

A dramatic communication received by the police from the dead man's cousin caused the adjournment of the inquiry. The coroner asked the medical officer to examine the body for possible clues to foul play.

The dead man's cousin, who was also employed in the ship, said he knew of no reason why Miah should hang himself.

Hathmut Ali, who is in charge of the firemen on the transport, said Miah had complained of a pain in his stomach. Later he found him hanging by a rope from a steam pipe. He had never heard of a Mussulman committing suicide by hanging.

Constable's Doubt.

Police-constable Emery, who interpreted the evidence given in Hindustani, said that he lived in India for 16 years, and this was the first case he had known in which a Mussulman had hanged himself. Committing suicide with a rope, said the officer, was one of the things abhorred by Mahomedans.

Witness's Secret.

Miah's cousin at this point made a communication to the policeman, and the coroner said: "Does he swear by his father's beard?"

The policeman said the witness had made a statement which he did not think ought to be made public at the moment.

"Although it is hearsay evidence," he said, "he has given a name to support it."

The coroner: "It is what I anticipated. I noticed a mark on the chest of the dead man, but I am unable to say what it was. I must, therefore, adjourn the inquiry."

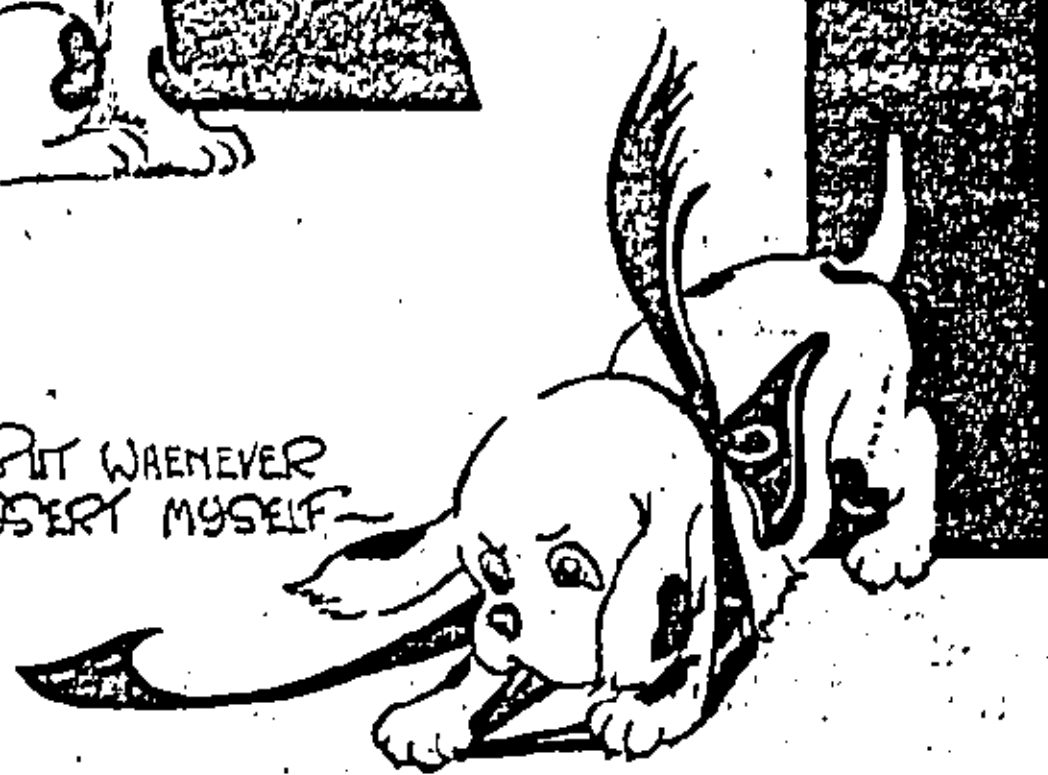

A large number of letters, many of which are believed to have contained cheques, were stolen from the Royal Theatre, Dean-street. The letters were taken from the postman by the fireman, who put them in the usual place near the ticket office. Twenty minutes later they were missing.

WATER-POLO SEASON COMMENCES.

NAVY DEFEAT SOMERSETS IN FIRST MATCH.

The water-polo season opened yesterday afternoon at the V.R.C. with a match between the Royal Navy and the Somersets in the senior division, the former team running out victors by four goals to two after an interesting game. Mr. Weyman officiated. The teams were:

Royal Navy—Harness, Leafe, Bull, Diplock, Smythe, Ryan and Barrett. Somersets—Naylor, Lilley, Meadows, Mackenzie, Sprouting, Howard and Parkes.

Ding-dong play marked the commencement of the game, the defenders on both sides showing up well. The Navy players were heavier than their opponents, and made the most of their weight, otherwise there was nothing to choose between the teams.

Barrett opened the score for the Navy with a well-placed backhand shot, which beat Naylor all the way, and the interval found the Navy leading by one goal. Shortly after the resumption, the Somersets, who were rather weak forward, missed a great opportunity to draw level, and the Navy, snapping up the ball, added another point.

The Somersets were by no means disheartened, and by dint of good play reduced the lead through Sprouting, who converted after a melee in the goal-mouth. However, a few minutes later, brought the military team on level terms with the Navy.

The Navy players were not to be denied, and using their superior weight to the utmost, took the lead again through Barrett, who added yet another goal before the final whistle blew, to give the Navy a 4-2 victory.

Kowloon Beat R.A.

Mr. G. T. May had charge of the junior game which immediately followed, between the Kowloon second string and the 12th Heavy Battery, R.A. Teams:

Kowloon—Hedley, Wittichell, Railton, Bliss, Franks, Padgett and May.

MR. L. G. FROST BREAKS HIS COLLAR-BONE.

A very unfortunate accident occurred at the racecourse at Happy Valley yesterday morning, Mr. L. G. Frost, the local jockey, being thrown and injured. He was riding Abel, one of this year's griffins, and when near the winning post the pony shied and got out of hand. Mr. Frost was thrown heavily to the ground. It was discovered that he had broken his collar bone, and he was immediately taken to the French Hospital, where he is now under treatment.

The accident is all the more unfortunate for the reason that Mr. Frost was down to ride several good ponies at the forthcoming two days' extra meeting. He had been booked for Zorhan, in the Third Aggregate Stakes, on the first day, and stood a very good chance of winning this. Mr. Frost is on top of the list of winning jockeys. His accident will keep him out of the saddle for some weeks.

CAPTAIN SECURES DIVORCE AT HOME.

Captain Reginald Wooldridge Shipley Hinton, a retired engineer-captain of the Navy, now living at Charlton-road, Keynham, Somerset, was awarded £750 damages, and given a decree nisi on May 10.

Captain Hinton alleged that his wife, Mrs. Irene Mabel Hinton, had committed misconduct with Captain S. B. Spillett, formerly master of a Fleet Auxiliary and now a pilot on the Suez Canal.

The marriage took place on September 18, 1918, at King's Chapel, Gibraltar.

The respondent was charged with committing adultery with the co-respondent at an address in Gloucester-gardens in September, 1928.

The suit was not defended. Mr. Barnard was counsel for Captain Hinton.

The case for Captain Hinton was that he and his wife met Captain Spillett at Hongkong. In 1927 Captain Hinton arranged for his wife to go to England, and later started for England himself. As a result of information, he intercepted his wife at Penang, as she was returning from England. He forced her to accompany him home, but subsequently found her associating with Captain Spillett at a London hotel.

Mr. Justice Bateson, in summing-up, said that the petitioner was 51 years of age and the respondent 34, and a younger man had come into their lives and taken the wife of the older man away. He had interfered with what had been for seven or eight years a perfectly happy married life. There were no children to be considered, but the petitioner, who had been serving his country, had retired at a comparatively early age with the hope of settling down with his wife, a home which had been defeated.

The jury assessed the damages at £750, and his Lordship ordered the co-respondent to pay that amount into Court within one month. He pronounced a decree nisi, with costs against the co-respondent.

CABINET RESIGNS IN SWEDEN.

FOLLOWING REJECTION OF WHEAT MEASURE.

Stockholm, June 2.

The Cabinet has resigned.

The crisis was due to the Government's measures to assist agriculture, which is very depressed, firstly by the obligatory inclusion of a fixed proportion of Swedish wheat in all wheat milled in Sweden, and secondly by raising the duty on imported corn.

Both Chambers adopted the first proposal, but rejected the second.

The Socialists are the strongest party in both Chambers, but are expected to decline Cabinet-making, and a non-party Ministry is probable.—Reuter.

ARSENAL SET ON FIRE.

ATTACKED BY REBELS
AT TSINANFU.

PANIC IN THE CITY FOLLOWS
EXPLOSION.

FORTY MEN KILLED.

Tsinanfu, June 2.

Pandemonium reigned at Tsinanfu for two hours when a small contingent of plain clothes Shansi insurgents, armed with hand grenades bombed the Government arsenal at Northern Hill shortly before eight o'clock yesterday evening in an attempt to seize the city during the ensuing panic. The Government troops at the Arsenal were completely surprised and following on the attack the large stocks of arms and ammunition exploded with terrific force.

The soldiers made a gallant attempt to move part of the ammunition supplies but these exploded with the result that forty soldiers and guards belonging to the Arsenal were killed instantly. Six were also fatally wounded in addition to a large number of soldiers and policemen who sustained minor injuries while fighting the blaze.

Residents near-by were panicked and throughout the evening there was a general withdrawal from the environs of the Arsenal in anticipation of further attacks by the Shansi rebels. The fire brigade and Police forces responded promptly and did much to check the spread of the fire.

Martial Law Proclaimed.

The proclamation of martial law added to the tension of yesterday evening. The Police spent the whole evening conducting searches for the rebels, hundreds of whom were believed to have secretly entered Tsinanfu. Numerous raids were carried out.

Strong rumours are prevailing that part of the Nationalist forces under General Han Fu-chu, the officer commanding the army at Tsinanfu, is likely to surrender to the Kuomintang Commanders as soon as the general offensive by the Kuomintang troops from the bank of the Yellow River commences.

Considerable apprehension prevails amongst the thousands of Japanese merchants here in consequence of the destruction of the Arsenal and they have formed a general committee, which will function as a public safety committee, with a view to requesting their Government to send more troops to Tsinanfu to ensure the safety of Japanese in the city.

Hundreds of Japanese residents have withdrawn towards Tsingtao, taking shelter there in view of the approaching struggle between the Nationalist and Shansi-Kuomintang armies in Shantung for the possession of Tsinanfu and the Tientsin-Pukow Railway.

Official Shansi messages from Peking state that Marshal Yen Hsi-chan conferred with his Divisional Commanders at Tsangchow yesterday and decided on general attacks against the Nationalist troops along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway.

Shantung Fighting.

Simultaneous fighting between the Nationalist and anti-Nationalist forces has broken out along the Tsinanfu-Kiaochow Railway after the fall of Tsingcheng to the rebels. In all the engagements with the Nationalist troops in Shantung, the Shansi rebels are understood to have fought fiercely with wide-bladed knives and grenades. General Han Fu-chu is personally directing the fighting along the Tsinanfu-Kiaochow Railway and machine guns and other modern weapons have been extensively used by the Nanking troops for the defence of Tsinanfu.

The Foreign Ministry at Nanking is about to issue a long proclamation reiterating the intention to protect all foreign life and property along the Tsinanfu-Kiaochow Railway. This follows to the effect that the Japanese merchants in districts along the Tsinanfu-Kiaochow Railway are urging the Tokyo Government to immediately increase the Japanese forces in Shantung.

University Raided.

The Chinese authorities in Greater Shanghai are maintaining a vigilant watch on Communist activities. Yesterday the Chinese troops raided the famous Chung Hua Art College, which is managed by Cantonese scholars of high reputation.

The raid was organised following on receipt of information that Communists were taking shelter at the College. The troops arrested ninety men and women

The Naval detachment consisted of two platoons from the Eighth Destroyer Flotilla and two platoons from H.M.S. Suffolk under the command of Lieut. Commander W. G. L. Cooper (H.M.S. Bruce). The Royal Marine detachment consisted of two platoons from H.M.S. Suffolk and one platoon from H.M.S. Tamar under the command of Captain G. H. Morris R.M. (H.M.S. Tamar).

Military Units.

The strength of the military units on parade was as follows. Heavy Batteries, Royal Artillery; 12th (84), 20th (60) and 31st (60).

Subsequently the parading troops and units, except the 2nd Batt. Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, marched through the main thoroughfares of the city to General Headquarters. They were headed by their respective bands, the route taken being via Connaught Road and Queen's Road Central.

believed to be Communist suspects.

The Nationalist troops have been supplied with a further 2,000,000 rounds of ammunition with the arrival yesterday of a steamer bringing a large consignment of arms for the Nanking Government.
